ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This is the twentieth of a series of new-style county histories which will include all of the 102 counties of Illinois, and, ultimately, all of the 3,103 counties of the United States. The project, specializing in aerial photographs of cities, towns, villages and farmsteads and with brief historical narratives added, is known as The American Aerial County History Series.

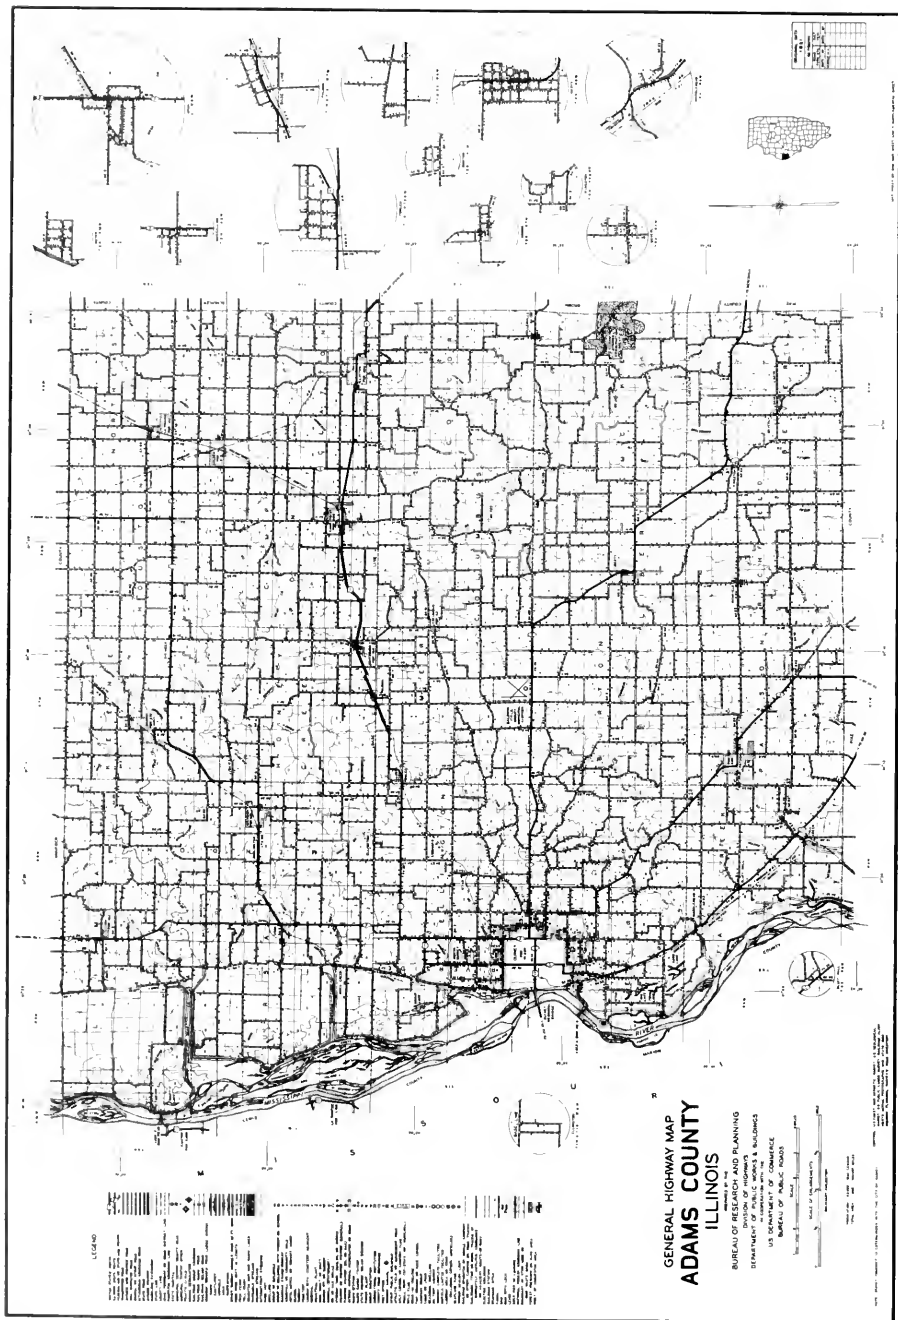

In the preparation of this work on Adams County, Illinois, the author and publisher hereby acknowledge their gratitude, for advice and assistance generously given them, to Mr. Joseph C. Wolf and Mrs. Ellen Chase of the Newberry Library, Chicago; to Mr. Herbert H. Hewitt, Mrs. Roberta Sutton and Miss Winifred Baum, all of the Chicago Public Library, Chicago; and to various librarians, public officials, business executives and private citizens of the city of Quincy and the county of Adams, Illinois. The author also wishes to express special acknowledgment to his wife, Marion Neville Drury, for research, editorial and proof-reading assistance.

Grateful appreciation is also shown here to officials of the Bureau of Public Roads of the U. S. Department of Commerce and to officials of the Department of Public Works & Planning of the State of Illinois (in particular to those in charge of that department's Bureau of Research and Planning in the Highway Department), for permission to use the Adams County maps included in this book.

Sources used by the author in preparing this volume were: The History of Adams County, Illinois, (published by Murray, Williamson & Phelps, Chicago, 1879); Inventory of the County Archives of Illinois, No. 1, Adams County (The Historical Records Survey, Chicago, 1939); Illinois: A Descriptive and Historical Guide, The American Guide Series (A. STORY OF ADAMS COUNTY

Fronting on the Mississippi River and "farthest west" of all Illinois counties, Adams County today is more productive as a manufacturing locality than as an agricultural region, due entirely to its county seat, Quincy, one of the largest cities of west central Illinois. With a present population of 41,450, the historic old river city of Quincy has over a hundred industrial establishments which ship out goods and materials to all parts of the United States.

In 1947, when the last United States business census was taken, the humming factories and plants of Adams County turned out articles, implements, materials, etc., amounting to $43,116,000, whereas the total value of all farm products (crops, livestock, poultry, dairy products) amounted to $16,734,000. The census figures also revealed that 28.2 per cent of all of the employed persons in the county were engaged in manufacturing, while 15.6 per cent were engaged in agriculture.

Historically, Adams County is of interest for the man who founded both the county and Quincy city—John Wood. After his pioneering work in the county, John Wood became a state senator, lieutenant-governor of Illinois, and finally governor of the state. He also was an outstanding officer in the Civil War. Governor Wood's early, Southern-style mansion in Quincy, now housing the Quincy Historical Society, is one of the Prairie State's leading architectural and historic landmarks.

MARQUETTE AND JOLLIET

First white men to view the future site of Adams County were the two great French explorers, Father Marquette and Louis Jolliet. After leaving Quebec and journeying westward in canoes on the St. Lawrence River, the Great Lakes and the Wisconsin River, they discovered the Upper Mississippi River in the spring of 1673. It was on their historic trip down the Mississippi as far as the mouth of the Arkansas River that these two notable explorers passed the land that in later times became Adams County, Illinois.

On completing their journey, Marquette and Jolliet claimed practically all of interior America for the King of France and thus it became a colonial empire known as New France. One hundred years later, after the close of the French and Indian Wars, this vast wilderness domain came into the possession of the British. But by that time the thirteen colonies on the Atlantic seaboard had been long established. There followed the American Revolution of 1775-1783. After George Rogers Clark and his handful of American backwoodsmen captured key British military posts in Illinois and Indiana, the new American flag was for the first time raised over what is now a large portion of the Midwest.

Then came the organization of the Northwest Territory (northwest of the region's original claimant, Virginia), out of which were later carved the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and part of Minnesota. When the Territory of Illinois was created in 1809, what is now Adams County lay in St. Clair County. Here it remained until 1812 when it became part of a new county, Madison. Three years after Illinois was admitted to statehood in 1818 another new county was created, Pike, and this contained the area that later became Adams County. It was thus situated when Adams County was established in 1825.

THE MILITARY TRACT

Before Adams County was created, and even before Illinois was admitted to statehood, the United States government set aside a vast portion of the public domain in Illinois for veterans of the War of 1812. This was called the Military Tract. It lay between the Illinois and Mississippi rivers and extended upward as far as a line drawn from Rock Island to Joliet.

As may be readily seen, future Adams County was situated within the Military Tract. Any veteran of the War of 1812 could have a free quarter-section of land (160 acres) here if he wanted it. But there were not many who came west to settle on their land; it seems the hardships of frontier life did not appeal to them. In consequence, many of the ex-soldiers sold their "prairie quarter" for $100, or even for less, while others traded theirs for a horse, a cow, or a watch.

What happened afterwards was that some of the first settlers of the region had great difficulty in ascertaining the legal status of their claims; they did not know if the soil on which they had settled was "Congress Land," which they were entitled to pre-empt, or "Bounty Land," which belonged to some veteran. Oftentimes, a "land shark" who had bought a veteran's quarter would turn up as owner and demand an exorbitant price for the claim on which a settler had built his home and laid out a farm.

FIRST SETTLERS

Although John Wood, afterwards governor of Illinois, is credited with being the actual founder of both Quincy city and Adams County, he was not the county's first settler. It appears that honor goes to Justus I. Perigo, who arrived with his family in 1821 and settled on land in what is now Fall Creek Township, just south of the present village of Marblehead.

At that time the area was part of Pike County. If Perigo was Adams County's first settler, however, he seems not to have done much about developing the region. One local historical work says of him: "He settled south of the present site of Millville (now Marblehead) in 1821; but being a regular frontiersman he made little show at improvements."

A year or two before the arrival of Perigo, several men had glimpsed the site of future Adams County who were later to play important parts in the history of the county. One of these was Willard Keyes, a sturdy Vermonter who had journeyed to the western country and who was later to become an associate of John Wood in the development of Quincy. Keyes afterwards said that on a May day in 1819 he and an assistant drifted past the site of Quincy on a raft, "unconscious of our future destiny in its eventful history."

Another who had glimpsed the area before the arrival of Perigo was Asa Tyrer. He came in 1820 searching for land he had purchased here, and, after finding it, returned to his home at Louisiana, Illinois. When he came back to future Adams County with his family in the spring of 1821, he found but two white families living in the region—those of Justus I. Perigo and Daniel Lisle. After building a house and laying out a farm in what is now Melrose Township, Asa Tyrer lived there until his death in 1873.

"THE BLUFFS"

It was in 1821, also, that John Wood first appeared on the scene of his future endeavors. In The History of Adams County, Illinois, published in 1879, he is thus described: "In 1821 he visited the present site of Quincy—then uninhabited—and, pleased with its prospects, soon after purchased a quarter section of land near by, and in the following fall (1822) erected near the river a small cabin, 18 by 20 feet, which was the first building in Quincy and the only one for some months afterwards."

That was the beginning of Quincy city, which today has a population of 41,450. After making his land purchase here, John Wood returned to the log cabin "bachelor's hall" he was then sharing with another bachelor, Willard Keyes, and which was located on a farm near New Canton, in Pike County. Both men had met earlier and become close friends.

As we have seen, it was in 1822 that John Wood built a log cabin on the site of future Quincy. Here he took up permanent quarters, and began to formulate plans for establishing a town. He felt that his quarter-section of land, located on a bluff above the Mississippi River, would be an ideal site for a river town. He then induced his friend, Willard Keyes, to join him, and in 1824 the latter arrived and also built a log cabin.

By that time, however, Jeremiah Rose and John Drouillard had built cabins near the Wood abode and the little settlement above the river was being called "The Bluffs." In the meantime, other newcomers were forming tiny settlements in the back country, and among the earliest of these homeseekers were the Beebes, Holcombs, Thomases, Campbells, Grosnons and Worleys.

FOUNDING OF ADAMS COUNTY

On Sept. 14, 1824, a notice was printed in the Edwardsville Spectator, leading newspaper of the time, containing these words: "A petition will be presented to the General Assembly of the State of Illinois, at its next session, praying for the establishment of a new county, to be formed from the county of Pike and the parts attached, the southern boundary of which shall be between towns three and four, south of the base line."

That notice was signed by John Wood, founder of "The Bluffs" settlement on the Mississippi. Other evidence shows he was leader of the movement to organize Adams County. After the Wood notice was published twelve times, as the law required then, and when no objections were raised to the proposal in the notice, the General Assembly passed a bill for the creation of Adams County, and this was approved by Governor Edward Coles on January 13, 1825. Thus was born Adams County.

The fact is, however, that same General Assembly enactment bill brought about the founding of eight other new counties besides Adams. These were Hancock, Henry, Knox, Mercer, Peoria, Putnam, Schuyler and Warren. It was a period of rapid development in that part of Illinois and new counties were being formed at almost regular intervals.

PRESIDENT JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

Several months before Adams County was organized, John Quincy Adams was elected sixth President of the United States. As the majority of voters in the future county were Adams men and as enthusiasm among them was still high over the recent election, it was agreed almost unanimously that their new county should be named after President-Elect Adams.

Member of one of the most celebrated families in American history and son of the second President of the United States, the newly-elected chief executive was born at Quincy, Massachusetts, in 1767. After accompanying his father on various diplomatic missions to France and Holland, in which countries he also attended school, young John Quincy Adams returned to America and finished his education at Harvard University.

In 1794, President Washington appointed him minister to the Netherlands. Later he was elected United States senator from Massachusetts, and in 1809 he was appointed minister to Russia. At a still later date Adams was appointed minister to England, and then, in 1817, he became Secretary of State under President Monroe—a position in which he formulated the policies of the famous Monroe Doctrine.

In the bitter presidential campaign of 1824, John Quincy Adams defeated his opponent, Andrew Jackson. But in the succeeding presidential campaign of 1828, Jackson triumphed over Adams. For seventeen years thereafter, Adams was continuously elected by his Massachusetts constituency to the House of Representatives. While serving in this body he opposed slavery and helped to establish the Smithsonian Institution. Adams died in 1848 at the age of eighty-one.

QUINCY BECOMES COUNTY SEAT

When the Illinois state legislature appointed three commissioners from outside newly-organized Adams County to select a county seat (a customary procedure of the time), they were told to pick the most centrally-located site in the new county. Not being familiar with the region, they sought the services of Willard Keyes as guide—the same Willard Keyes who was now associated with John Wood in promoting a town at the site of “The Bluffs.”

Although Keyes tried to interest the commissioners in his proposed town as a possible county seat, he met with little success. The commissioners were determined to select a more centrally-located site. Bowing to their wishes and not without a little mischief in his mind, Willard Keyes led the delegation into the center of the county, into a region that was full of “bogs, quicksands and quagmires.” After floundering around this unlikely area for a whole day, the commissioners were glad to get back to the Keyes cabin on the Mississippi River bluff.

The next day, so the story goes, the commissioners decided unanimously in favor of “The Bluffs” as the new county’s seat of justice. When this happened, John Wood immediately laid plans for establishing a townsite. Later that year (1825) the townsite was surveyed and lots were placed on sale. Most of the buyers of these lots were the county’s first elected officials, as well as John Wood and Willard Keyes.

When a suitable name was sought for the new town on the Mississippi River bluff, someone said: “Why don’t we take another slice from the President’s name and call our county seat Quincy?” And thus it was that Quincy city received its name.

FIRST COUNTY ELECTION

At the first election held in Adams County on July 2, 1825, about forty votes were cast. The total population of the county then was estimated at seventy. For a polling place, the voters (all male) used the log cabin home of Willard Keyes in the new town of Quincy. When the votes were counted, Willard Keyes, Levi Wells and Peter Journey were found to have been elected the county’s first commissioners. Levi Wells resided in the region where later the village of Payson was built and Peter Journey lived in what afterwards became Fall Creek Township.

Although it was Independence Day, the commissioners of the County Court (at that time the ruling body of a county was called a “court” instead of a "board") held their first session on July 4, 1825. They met in the cabin home of Commissioner Keyes, this having been designated a temporary seat of justice. Their first order of business was to appoint Earl Pierce as special constable for the court, Henry H. Snow as county clerk and Ira Pierce as census-taker.

They also moved that Joshua Streeter, John L. Soule, Lewis C. K. Hamilton and Amos Bancroft be recommended to the Governor of Illinois for appointment as Justices of the Peace—a recommendation that was later carried out by Governor Edward Coles. At subsequent meetings of the Adams County Court a number of other appointments were made—James Black as county recorder, Levi Hadley as sheriff and Asa Tyrer as coroner.

FIRST COURTHOUSE

In pioneer times it was not at all uncommon for elected county officials, if they possessed special skills, to enter into contracts with the county for the performance of some type of work. And so we find that the first permanent courthouse in Adams County was erected in Quincy by three county officials: Commissioner Willard Keyes, Justice of the Peace John L. Soule and Sheriff Levi Hadly. The building was completed in 1826 at a cost of $106.50.

It was a two-story log structure, twenty-two feet in length and eighteen in width. The upper floor was divided by a partition to provide offices for the county clerk and other officers, while the lower floor was left as one large room or hall. Here were held sessions of the Commissioners' Court and the Circuit Court, as well as church meetings, social gatherings, lectures, exhibitions and schoolroom sessions. This first county courthouse was destroyed by fire in 1836, but in that year the county had under construction a second courthouse.

THE LORD'S BARN

One of the earliest ministers of Adams County, as well as a pioneer anti-slavery leader of the area, was the Reverend Asa B. Turner, who came from Templeton, Massachusetts, and who was a brother of Jonathan Turner, an outstanding Illinois educator. It was the Reverend Mr. Turner who built the first church in Quincy, a plain, wooden building completed in 1831 and that came to be known as the Lord's Barn.

With Quincy growing in importance as a river town, it was frequently visited by Missouri pro-slavery men from across the Mississippi River and eventually clashes occurred between these men and the abolitionists, or anti-slavery, men of Quincy—a situation that presaged the Civil War.

On one occasion, Dr. David Nelson, an abolitionist Presbyterian minister and author of the hymn "The Shining Shore," hurried to Quincy after his life was threatened by a Missouri slave owner. He was given shelter by the Reverend

Mr. Turner. Shortly thereafter, an abolitionist society was organized in Quincy and this is believed to have been inspired by the two ministers.

After the society announced that an open meeting would be held in the Lord's Barn, pro-slavery groups issued circulars urging the citizens of Quincy and north-eastern Missouri to "help clean out the abolitionists." On the night of the meeting, a mob of pro-slavery men began throwing stones at the Lord's Barn when suddenly all of the men inside rose up and, seizing clubs, hatchets and rifles that had been secreted under the pulpit, rushed out and routed the attackers. The abolitionists then returned to the Lord's Barn and continued their meeting without further disturbance.

JOHN WOOD MANSION

After the Black Hawk War of 1832, in which two companies of Adams County men saw service, and after the cholera epidemic of the following year, which caused the deaths of between thirty and forty residents of Quincy, life in Adams County resumed its normal pace and many new homes were built in Quincy and elsewhere to meet the needs of a growing population. One of the most imposing homes constructed then was the Quincy mansion of John Wood, who afterwards became governor of Illinois.

Still standing today and now housing the Quincy Historical Society, the Wood mansion was completed in 1835 and thereafter became a showplace of the river town. It is one of the earliest houses in the Midwest to be designed in the Greek Revival style of architecture and a brief description of it is found in Architecture of the Old Northwest Territory, written in 1950 by Rexford Newcomb of the University of Illinois.

While living in this white plantation-type mansion, John Wood served as mayor of Quincy for several terms and as a state senator. In 1856 he was elected lieutenant-governor of Illinois. In 1860 he became Governor of Illinois after the state's then chief executive, William H. Bissell, died in office. After filling out Bissell's unexpired term, John Wood was appointed quartermaster-general of Illinois during the Civil War.

The Wood mansion today is an historical museum open to the public. It contains not only relics and mementos of Quincy's early days but also household articles, pieces of furniture and personal belongings of Governor Wood and his family. Here, also, are the sword and medicine book carried by John Wood's father, a doctor who served in the Revolutionary War.

COUNTY SEAT WAR

It was in 1841 that a "county seat war" began in Adams County and did not end until 1846. The struggle started when the citizens of Columbus, a village in the center of the county, decided their community was better suited for a county seat than Quincy. An election to settle the question was held in 1841 and the Columbus faction won by 91 votes.

Although Judge Stephen A. Douglas, who was then sitting on the Circuit Court, issued a mandamus ordering the county commissioners to recognize Columbus as the new county seat, the commissioners at Quincy delayed action on the matter pending an appeal to the Supreme Court of Illinois. Many citizens of Quincy felt that the supporters of Columbus had stuffed the ballot boxes.

In the meantime, other influential citizens of Quincy succeeded in having the state legislature create a new county out of the eastern part of Adams (including Columbus village) which was called Marquette. This enabled Quincy to retain its status as county seat of Adams.

But when the residents of Marquette refused to organize a county government, the state legislature was again appealed to and in 1846 it enlarged Marquette with additional territory and created a still newer county out of the whole called Highland. Again, the residents of the new county refused to organize a government within four months, as demanded by the legislature. When this happened, all of the new county reverted to Adams. And this marked the end of the "county seat war." Today, Columbus village has a population of eighty-three.

SECOND LARGEST CITY

For a period of twenty years in the middle of the nineteenth century Quincy was the second largest city in Illinois. This was during the steamboat era, and Quincy was then one of the leading steamboat centers of the Mississippi River. We are told that steamboat landings at Quincy averaged five a day and that her riverside wharves were always crowded with great white packets, towboats, keelboats and merchandise rafts.

In 1840 the population of Quincy was 2,319, but in 1850 this figure had jumped to 6,902—an increase of 197.6 per cent. It went even higher in 1860, reaching 13,718. In the late 1840's some 20,000 hogs were shipped from Quincy by steamboat to St. Louis, and this annual shipment went up to 70,000 a few years later. During the 1850's, the value of all goods exported from Quincy annually averaged $15,000,000. The city then produced plows, shoes, stoves, wagons, carriages, organs, corn-planters and steam engines.

Although Quincy declined as a commercial center with the passing of the steamboat, it staged a comeback with the arrival of the railroads and today is once more a leading manufacturing and shipping center.

LINCOLN-DOUGLAS DEBATE

Sixth of the series of seven Great Debates staged by Abraham Lincoln and Senator Stephen A. Douglas during the Illinois senatorial campaign of 1858 was held in Quincy. It was at 9:30 o'clock on the morning of October 13, 1858, that the Burlington train carrying Lincoln arrived in Quincy. On stepping from his coach, the tall, smooth-shaven Springfield lawyer was welcomed by a large crowd of Republicans and by Steig's Brass Band.

Lincoln was then escorted to the home of his friend, Orville Hickman Browning, one of the most prominent lawyers of the day and a pioneer resident of Quincy. This house, which stood near Seventh and Hampshire streets, was destroyed by fire in 1904. At the Browning home, Lincoln was presented with a bouquet by the Republican ladies of Quincy, a gift he accepted with "a few well-chosen words."

In the meantime, Lincoln's little opponent, Senator Douglas, was conferring with fellow Democrats at the Quincy House. He had arrived the evening before and was met by some 3,000 shouting Democrats, several hundred of whom carried blazing torches.

When the debate was staged on a platform in Washington Square, opposite the Adams County Courthouse, some 10,000 to 12,000 persons were in the audience. They came from both Illinois and Missouri. After the debate was over, Lincoln's friends formed a "splendid torchlight procession" and the day ended with the two political leaders retiring to their respective quarters.

On the following day, both Lincoln and Douglas, as well as the reporters accompanying them, boarded the palatial Mississippi River steamer City of Louisiana and voyaged southward to Alton, where another of the Great Debates was staged. Although Lincoln lost to Douglas in the senatorial campaign of that year, he won national renown by the Great Debates and from then on was considered a presidential possibility.

THIRD COURTHOUSE

In the years just after the Civil War, a conflict in which Adams County contributed more than its quota of men and money, the need for a newer and larger courthouse became so urgent that steps were taken to build such an edifice. Thus, the county's third, and present, courthouse was completed in 1877. It replaced the second courthouse built in 1838 and in front of which Lincoln and Douglas staged their debate of October 13, 1858.

Occupying a grassy rise of ground in the center of Jefferson Square, the Adams County Courthouse has the appearance of a state capitol. It is a two-story brick and stone building surmounted by a towering dome. At each side of the edifice a broad flight of stone steps leads up to a columned portico over the entrance. The courthouse was completed at a cost of $289,619.55.

ORVILLE H. BROWNING MANSION

At about the same time the county's present courthouse was built, Orville Hickman Browning, one of Quincy's most successful and distinguished citizens, erected a red brick mansion that became a landmark of the city. It is said that the mansion and the grounds on which it was built cost Browning more than $50,000. The residence is still standing on its original site at Eighth and Spruce streets and is now occupied by St. Joseph's Hospital.

A native of Kentucky, Orville H. Browning was one of the pioneer lawyers of Quincy, a friend of Lincoln's, a state senator, a United States senator during the Civil War, and Secretary of the Interior in the cabinet of President Andrew Johnson. He died in 1881 at the age of seventy-five. His mansion was later acquired by Henry F. J. Ricker, a Quincy businessman.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' HOME

An outstanding sight in Quincy today is the Illinois Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, set in the midst of a 200-acre tract of landscaped land at the north end of Twelfth Street. The institution was established in 1887 for veterans of American wars and their dependents. The grounds of the home are on wooded bluffs above the Mississippi River and contain an artificial lake, a deer enclosure and attractive sunken gardens.

BALDWIN PARK

An amusement spot and site of the annual Adams County Fair, Baldwin Park, at Thirtieth and Main streets, was formerly the home of Major Thomas B. Baldwin, a pioneer aeronautical experimenter for the government and one of the first American balloonists. An event of unusual interest in the history of Adams County was the day in 1887 when Major Baldwin thrilled the citizens of Quincy by making a parachute jump from an altitude of 4,000 feet.

SILOAM SPRINGS STATE PARK

In the southeast corner of Adams County lies Siloam Springs State Park, a rolling woodland area of more than 2,000 acres maintained by the State of Illinois. Plans for developing further recreational and other facilities in the park are under way. The area is located near the village of Kellerville, just north of State 104. It is visited annually by hundreds of sightseers.

LOCKS AND DAMS

In addition to Quincy Bay and the Quincy Memorial Bridge, that portion of the Mississippi River forming the western boundary of Adams County contains two other notable sights—Lock and Dam No. 20 and Lock and Dam No. 21. The latter is located just below Quincy city. These locks and dams are two of a series built on the Mississippi River to improve navigation and control flood waters.

ARCHITECTURAL LANDMARK

Among architectural landmarks of Illinois drawn by staff architects of the Historic American Buildings Survey during the 1930's was the old Knoyer house in Quincy, a two-story wooden dwelling built in the middle of the nineteenth century. Scale drawings and photographs of this house, obtained by the northern Illinois unit of the Historic American Buildings Survey under the direction of Earl H. Reed of Chicago, are now on file in the Library of Congress and the Burnham Architectural Library of the Art Institute in Chicago.

"WHO'S WHO" IN ADAMS COUNTY

Seven residents of Adams County, all of them living in Quincy, are included in the latest (1955) edition of that standard reference work, Who's Who in America. One of them is the Reverend Julian A. Woods, president of Quincy College. Another Quincy educator listed is Thomas E. Musselman, vice-president of the Gem City Business College and nationally-known authority on birds and bird life.

Two outstanding jurists included in Who's Who are Federal Judge Jackson L. Adair of the United States District Court for Southern Illinois, and Judge Fred G. Wolfe of the Illinois Appellate Court. A newspaper publisher listed is Arthur O. Lindsay, publisher of the Herald-Whig and Journal of Quincy since 1926. Also listed is Dr. Harold Swanberg, director of the Quincy X-Ray & Radium Laboratories and founder of the Swanberg Medical Foundation and the Swanberg Kiwanis Foundation, and Edgar F. Schaefer, president of the Gardner Denver Company since 1947.

ADAMS COUNTY TODAY

On the basis of latest United States census figures, Adams County in 1950 had a total population of 64,690—which placed it 383d in population rank among 3,103 counties of the United States. Its county seat and principal city, Quincy, had a population of 41,450—an increase of 2.4 per cent over its 1940 population. Quincy is also the center of a retail trading area with a population estimated at more than 300,000.

With a land area of 866 square miles, the county's density of population was 75 inhabitants per square mile. It had an urban population of 44,435 (most of whom lived in Quincy), a rural farm population of 11,508, and a rural non-farm population (dwellers in towns, villages and country places) of 8,747. Of the county's total population, 6,041 were infants under five years of age, 8,211 were persons sixty-five years old and over, and the median age of the county was given as 35.3 years. The total number of potential voters in 1950 was 44,499.

Under the heading of vital statistics, Adams County in 1950 had 1,331 births, 878 deaths (including thirty-two infants), and 613 marriages. The number of families (two or more persons related by marriage or blood) then was 16,785. The median income of all of these families in 1949 was $2,731; more than 32 per cent had incomes of less than $2,000, while 14.6 per cent had incomes of $5,000 or more.

In the field of education, the county had a total of 9,590 young persons between the ages of seven and seventeen years (primary and high school years). There were 6,180 youngsters between the ages of seven and thirteen years enrolled in primary schools (95.9 per cent of the total in that age group), and 2,775 between the ages of fourteen and seventeen enrolled in high schools (88.2 per cent in that age group). Of all of the persons in the county twenty-five years old and over, the figures show that the median number of school years they completed was 8.8. A little more than 6 per cent of these completed less than five years of schooling, while 28.8 per cent completed high school training. The institutional population of the county (inmates of prisons, mental hospitals, etc.) was 2,141.

Adams County in 1950 had a total potential labor force (persons fourteen years old and over) of 50,302. Actually employed, however, were 25,352, of which 74.2 per cent were males and 27.8 per cent females. The labor figures showed further that 6,916 were employed in manufacturing, 5,065 in wholesale and retail trade, 3,822 in agriculture, 2,212 in professional and related services, 1,362 in transportation, communication and other public utilities, 1,347 in construction, 1,304 in business and personal services, 587 in finance, insurance and real estate, and 38 in mining. The labor figures were summed up by showing that 28.2 per cent of all persons employed in the county were engaged in manufacturing, while 15.6 per cent were engaged in agriculture.

On the subject of housing, the county in 1950 had a total of 20,738 dwelling units (in 1940 it had 19,366). The median number of rooms per unit was 4.7. More than 68 per cent were one-dwelling unit detached structures (including occupied trailers), 8.8 per cent were built in 1940 or later, and 47.0 per cent had hot running water and private toilet and bath. More than 65 per cent were owner-occupied, 2.0 per cent were occupied by non-white households, 56.9 per cent had central heating, 76.9 per cent had mechanical refrigerators, and 96.9 per cent had radios. The total number of non-farm dwelling units in the county was given as 17,145, and the median value of all one-dwelling units occupied by owners was given as $6,230. The median gross monthly rental of renter-occupied dwellings was $32.14.

In 1948, when the last United States business census was taken, Adams County had 833 retail stores conducted by 830 active proprietors who were not incorporated and which grossed $60,847,000 in sales. The largest number of retail stores were eating and drinking places (219), which grossed $6,083,000 in sales. Next largest were food stores (198), which grossed $13,138,000 in sales. In that same year there were 112 wholesale establishments which grossed $59,976,000 in sales.

In that same year, also, there were 106 manufacturing establishments (most of them in Quincy) which produced goods, materials, implements, etc., amounting to a total of $43,116,000. The number of employees that year was 9,842.

In 1950 there were 2,896 farms in Adams County, of which 2,555 were classified as commercial farms. More than 29 per cent of all of the farms were operated by tenants. The average value of land and buildings per farm for all farms was given as $19,437. The value of all farm products (crops, livestock, poultry, dairy products) sold in 1949, four years after the close of World War II, was $16,734,000. In that same year farm expenditures amounted to $1,948,000 for livestock and $1,027,000 for hired labor.

CITY OF QUINCY

Beginning at the Mississippi River and spreading out on bluffs in all directions, Quincy City, which also is the seat of Adams County, is a leading commercial and industrial center of west central Illinois. In 1950 it had a total population of 41,450—an increase of 2.4 per cent over its 1940 figure. It is also the center of a retail trading area with a population estimated at more than 300,000 and extending over parts of both Illinois and adjacent Missouri.

Quincy, located 125 miles north of St. Louis and 285 miles southwest of Chicago, is served by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Wabash and the Quincy, Omaha and Kansas City railroads, and by six motor freight lines. It is also served by T.W.A., Braniff and Ozark air lines, which use Quincy's municipal airport, Baldwin Field, located just east of the city. Here, furthermore, are US 24 and state highways 104, 96, 61 and 57.

Products manufactured in the more than 100 factories of Quincy include air compressors, centrifugal pumps, rock drills and other equipment for mine and oil-field operations. Here, also, are produced trailer truck bodies, poultry equipment, metal wheels, screw fittings, stoves, furnaces, garments, hosiery, shoes, soybean oil and mineral feeds. Quincy is also the site of Quincy College and the Gem City Business College. The city's five savings banks have deposits totaling $23,511,141.62. There are six supermarkets in Quincy and vicinity, as well as branches of all leading national chain stores. Historical aspects of the city are described in the opening narrative of this book.

BEVERLY

In the southeast corner of Adams County lies the village of Beverly, with a population of 100. It is situated about two miles south of State 104 and serves as a small trading center for the farming community around it.

Named after the town of Beverly in Massachusetts, Beverly village was laid out in 1836 by a pioneer group composed of John B. Robertson, William, Raymond, Charles W. Billington, Samuel Reynolds and Archibald Williams.

Beverly village is the principal community of Beverly Township, which today has a total population of 472. First settler of the township was Azeriah Mayfield, who came in 1832.

KINGSTON

Another community in Beverly Township is the hamlet of Kingston, with a population of thirty. It is located adjacent to State 104. Kingston was named after one of its founders, James King. A Methodist church was built here as early as 1854.

MARCELLINE

Another community of Ursa Township is the village of Marcelline, with a population of 100. It is served by the postoffice at nearby Ursa. Marcelline was laid out about 1842 by S. M. Jenkins.

Another community in Burton Township is the hamlet of Burton, with a population of thirty-two. It is served by the postoffice at nearby Quincy city. The hamlet was platted about 1836 by Elijah M. King, early settler.

ADAMS

With a present population of seventy-one, Adams village is believed to have been named after Elias Adams, a veteran of the War of 1812 and first settler of Burton Township, in which the village is located. He arrived in 1824 or 1825 and settled on a quarter-section of land here granted to him by the government for his services in the War of 1812. At the present time, Burton Township has a total population of 708.

CAMP POINT

Second largest community in Adams County is the incorporated village of Camp Point, which in 1950 had a total population of 969. In addition to numerous retail stores and service establishments, the village has a postoffice, banking facilities and a Railway Express Agency branch. It is located northeast of Quincy on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and on US 24.

One of the oldest villages in the county, Camp Point, says a local historical work, "derived its name from a point of timber, now within the limits of the village, known to the early settlers as 'Indian Camp Point,' being a landmark for the pioneers, and used in a still earlier day by Indians as a camping ground." The village is the only community in Camp Point Township, which has a total population of 1,428.

CLAYTON

Third largest community of Adams County is the incorporated village of Clayton, located northeast of Quincy on the Wabash Railroad and on US 24. It has a present population of 866. The village was laid out in 1834 by three brothers, Charles, John and the Reverend Reuben K. McCoy. An ardent admirer of Henry Clay, the American statesman, Charles McCoy named the village after Clay.

It was the Reverend Reuben McCoy who built the first house in the village and who for more than thirty years served as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Clayton. This village is the principal community of Clayton Township, the population of which is 1,389. First settler of the future township was Obediah Nicks, who arrived with his family in 1829. The second settler was David M. Campbell, who came in 1830 and who was the township's first school teacher.

BLACKS

Another community in Clayton Township is the small hamlet of Blacks, located northwest of Clayton village. It is served by the postoffice at Clayton. The Wabash Railroad runs through the hamlet.

COLUMBUS

Because of its centrally-located position in the county, Columbus village at one time sought to become the seat of Adams County. After a typical "county seat war" with Quincy city, which began in 1841, the village of Columbus gave up the battle and settled down to its normal pace as a trading center of the farming area in the middle of the county.

Today, Columbus has a population of eighty-three. The village was platted in 1835 by Willard Graves, early settler. It is the only community in Columbus Township, which has a total population of 505. First settler of the township was James Thomas, who came in 1830 from Kentucky. Later came Abraham Jonas, whose son, B. F. Jonas, grew up to become a United States senator for Louisiana.

CLAYTON TOWNSHIP

KELLERVILLE

Only community of Concord Township, at the eastern edge of Adams County, is the hamlet of Kellerville, which in 1950 had a population of thirty-three. Just south of the hamlet is Siloam Springs State Park, a natural woodland region of more than 2,000 acres. The total population of Concord Township is 427. Among the first settlers of the township were John E. Wells, John Ausmus and O. H. Bennett, all of whom arrived in 1832. In 1862 a group of German residents of the township organized the German Lutheran Church.

EWBANKS

A small hamlet in Ellington Township, northeast of Quincy, is Ewbanks. It is served by the postoffice at Quincy and is situated on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. Ewbanks is the only community of the township, which has a total population of 1,467. Parts of Ellington, Melrose and Riverside townships were annexed to Quincy Township (coextensive with Quincy city) in 1941, 1945, 1946 and 1950, respectively. First settler of Ellington Township was Samuel Seward, who came in 1828. An early village in the township was Bloomfield, founded in 1837 by Ansel Clarkson.

FALL CREEK TOWNSHIP

FALL CREEK

South of Quincy, near the Mississippi River, is situated the village of Marblehead, with a population of 210. Through it run the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and the Wabash railroads, also State 57. It was just south of Marblehead, near an earlier village called Millville, that the first settler of the county, Justus I. Perigo, arrived in 1821. Soon after he came a number of other homeseekers settled in the vicinity and by 1835 the village of Millville was founded. Marblehead is the principal community of Fall Creek Township, which has a total population of 707.

FALL CREEK

Another community in Fall Creek Township is Fall Creek village, which in 1950 had a population of fifty. It is located on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and the Wabash railroads, and on State 57. The village began as a local postoffice more than seventy-five years ago.

BLUFF HALL

Bluff Hall is still another community in Fall Creek Township. It has a population of ten and is served by the postoffice at nearby Payson village (in Payson Township). Bluff Hall also began as a local postoffice more than seventy-five years ago.

FOWLER

Only community situated entirely within the confines of Gilmer Township is the village of Fowler, which in 1950 had a total population of 175. In addition to several retail stores, the village has its own postoffice and a branch of the Railway Express Agency. It is located on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and on US 24.

Fowler had its origin in a local postoffice of the same name established more than seventy-five years ago. Today, Gilmer Township has a total population of 726. It was named after Dr. Thornton Gilmer, a pioneer physician. Among early settlers of the township were George Wigle, Benjamin Walby, Jacob Smith and John Thomas, all of whom arrived between 1829 and 1830.

COLUMBUS

Part of the village of Columbus lies in Gilmer Township, this portion numbering twenty-two inhabitants. A detailed description of Columbus village is contained in the chapter on Columbus Township.

COATSBURG

Founded in 1855 by R. P. Coats, an early settler, the incorporated village of Coatsburg today has a population of 194. It is located seventeen miles northeast of Quincy on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and on US 24. Coatsburg is the principal community of Honey Creek Township, which has a total population of 792. Among the first settlers of the township were the White, Lovejoy, Gooding, Byler and Fletcher families. The township derived its name from Honey Creek, along the banks of which the early settlers found many "bee trees."

PALOMA

Also in Honey Creek Township is the village of Paloma, with a population of 150. It, too, is located on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and on US 24. The village began as a postoffice more than seventy-five years ago.

CHATTON

A small hamlet in Houston Township, on the northern border of the county, is Chatton. A description of the hamlet written more than seventy-five years ago contained these words: "There is a railroad station on the east side of the township called Chatton, in honor of B. I. Chatton of Quincy. The station comprises one store owned by Joseph W. Strickler, and the residence of James E. McDavitt, Esq., late supervisor." Chatton is the only community of Houston Township, which has a total population of 520. The township was named after General Sam Houston of Texas.

HONEY CREEK TOWNSHIP

LORAINE

"Loraine is an outgrowth of the Carthage branch of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad," says an Adams County history published in 1879. It continues: "The town was laid out by Messrs. Woods and Leinberger in December, 1870, during the time the railroad was under construction." Today, the incorporated village of Loraine has a population of 370. It is the principal community of Keene Township, with a total population of 866.

WOODVILLE

Still another hamlet in Keene Township is Woodville, located at the northern edge of Adams County. Just east of it flows Woodville Creek. The hamlet was founded more than seventy-five years ago.

BIG NECK

Another community in Keene Township is the hamlet of Big Neck, with a population of twelve. It is served by the postoffice at Loraine. The hamlet derived its name from Big Neck Creek, which flows through the area.

LIMA

The incorporated village of Lima, in the northwest corner of the county near the Mississippi River, has a present population of 154. The village is located on State 96 and has a number of retail stores, banking facilities and a postoffice. It was in 1833 that Dr. Joseph Orr built the first store in Lima. He named the village at the suggestion of a Peruvian friend who visited him and said that the village women were as handsome as any in his native city of Lima, Peru. The village is the principal community of Lima Township, with a total population of 805.

Another community in Lima Township is the small hamlet of Buell. It is located just west of Lima village near the Bluff Canal. A body of water was once located near here called Lima Lake.

GOLDEN

At the junction of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and Wabash railroads, in the northeast corner of the county, lies the incorporated village of Golden, which in 1950 had a population of 512. It has a number of retail stores, service establishments, a postoffice and banking facilities. Through the village runs State 102. The village was founded about 1862 and at first was called Keokuk Junction because the Wabash Railroad's branch from Clayton to Keokuk passed through here. Golden is the largest community of Northeast Township, which has a total population of 1,155. First settler of the township was Alexander Oliver, who came in 1829.

LA PRAIRIE

With a present population of 142, the village of La Prairie is located north of Golden on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. It was founded more than a hundred years ago by H. Dills, A. C. Marsh, O. L. Skinner, H. T. J. Ricker, Hiram Rogers, Benjamin Bacon and Obediah Gibbs.

PAYSON

The incorporated village of Payson, fifteen miles southeast of Quincy, was laid out in 1835 by Deacon Albigeance Scarborough, who came from West Hartford, Connecticut. Associated with him were P. E. Thompson and James C. Bernard. Deacon Scarborough named the village after the Reverend Dr. Payson, of Portland, Maine, a friend whom he greatly admired. Today, Payson village has a population of 490. It is the leading community of Payson Township, which has a total population of 1,387.

PLAINVILLE

Originally called Stone's Prairie, the village of Plainville has been in existence for more than seventy-five years. It is located southeast of Payson on State 96. The village has a present population of 242. The founders of Plainville were John Delaplain and A. V. Vinning.

RICHFIELD

Only community of Richfield Township, southeast of Quincy, is the village of Richfield, which has a population of fifty. It is served by the postoffice at nearby Plainville (in Payson Township). A description of Richfield, written more than seventy-five years ago, says that "it is a small place and contains a number of dwellings, an M. E. church, a blacksmith and wagon shop and two stores." The township in which it is located today has a total population of 533. First settlers of the township were Jacob Franks and A. N. Penrod, who came in the fall of 1828.

NOTE QUINCY TOWNSHIP IS COTERMINOUS WITH THE CITY OF QUINCY

NORTH QUINCY

An unincorporated community, North Quincy in 1950 had a total population of 2,985. It occupies the area just north of Quincy city and is located in Riverside Township. The community is spread out mostly on both sides of US 24. Just beyond it, to the west, lies Quincy Bay, an inlet of the Mississippi River which in early times was a winter harbor for steamboats. Today, the bay affords opportunities for boating, fishing and swimming. The total population of Riverside Township, which was created out of a part of old Ellington Township, is 3,985.

URSA TOWNSHIP

URSA

URSA

North of Quincy, at the junction of state highways 61 and 96, is located the incorporated village of Ursa, with a population of 325. The village, which has a postoffice and a number of retail stores and service establishments, is also situated on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. Ursa was laid out in 1875 and replaced an earlier village in the vicinity called "Old Ursa." Today, it is the principal community of Ursa Township, with a total population of 1,098. The first settlers of the township were Samuel Groshong, George Campbell and William Worley, all of whom came in 1825.

THE ILLINOIS STATE FLAG

STATE FLAG OF ILLINOIS

ILLINOIS' STATE FLAG was officially adopted on July 6, 1915, after a vigorous campaign by Mrs. Ella Park Lawrence, State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Early in 1912, Mrs. Lawrence began visiting local D. A. R. chapters throughout Illinois seeking cooperation in promoting selection of an official State banner to place in the Continental Memorial Hall in Washington, D. C. In 1913, Mrs. Lawrence offered a prize of $25.00 to the Illinois D. A. R. chapter submitting the best design for the banner. She also wrote to members of the General Assembly seeking their cooperation.

Four judges were then selected to choose the winning design. Thirty-five designs were submitted and the Rockford Chapter entry was chosen as Illinois' future emblem.

State Senator Raymond D. Meeker introduced the bill which was to legalize the flag. After passage in the Senate it was pushed through the House of Representatives, despite an overcrowded calendar.

The measure automatically became a law July 6, 1915, when the Governor failed to affix his signature to the bill.

The first official flag, made in Washington, D. C., was three by five feet in size, of white silk. Flags were given by Mrs. Lawrence to Secretary of State, Daughters of the American Revolution in Illinois; National Society Daughters of the American Revolution in Illinois; National Society Daughters of the American Revolution (to hang in Memorial Continental Hall, Washington, D. C.); Rebecca Parke Chapter, Galesburg and the Illinois State Historical Society.

Visitors to Springfield cannot fail to notice the State Banner flanking the Stars and Stripes in the Rotunda at the State House. In the same juxtaposition it appears in the office of the Secretary of State. It is flown on ceremonial days by numerous patriotic bodies throughout the State. For officials and the public alike it stands as a reminder of our greatness as a State and our pride in our membership in the United States of America.

"DON'TS" IN THE USE OF THE FLAG

The conference called at Washington in June, 1923, to draw up a code covering proper civil usage of the flag, adopted the following list of things to avoid:

1. Do not dip the flag of the United States to any person or any thing. The regimental color, State flag, organization or institutional flag, will render this honor. At sea the flag may be dipped in acknowledgment of the salute of the flag of another nation.
2. Do not display the flag of the United States with the Union down except as a signal of distress.
3. Do not place any other flag or pennant above or to the right of the flag.
4. Do not let the flag of the United States touch the ground or tail in the water.
5. Do not place any object or emblem of any kind on or above the flag of the United States.

6. Do not use the flag as drapery.
7. Do not fasten the flag in such manner as will permit it to be easily torn.
8. Do not drape the flag over the top or sides of a vehicle, train or boat.
9. Do not use the flag to drape over front of a platform or over chairs or benches.
10. Do not display the flag on a float in a parade except on a staff.
11. Do not use the flag as a ceiling covering.
12. Do not use the flag of the United States as a portion of a costume.
13. Do not put lettering upon the flag.
14. Do not use the flag in any advertising.
15. Do not use the flag in such a manner as to cause it to be soiled or damaged.

To estimate the number of plants required for an acre at any given distance, multiply the distance between the rows by the distance between the plants, which will give the number of square feet allotted to each plant and divide the number of square feet in an acre (43,560) by this number. The quotient will be the number of plants required.

QUANTITY OF SEEDS REQUIRED PER ACRE

GRAIN MEASURE.

To find the capacity of a Bin or Wagon-bed; multiply the cubic feet by 8 (tenths). For great accuracy, add ½ of a bushel for every 100 cubic feet.

To find the cubic ft., multiply the length, width and depth together.

Find the capacity of a Bin 4 ft. wide, 5 ft. deep, and 15 ft. long.

To get the exact answer 1 bu. is added for the 300 cubic ft.

$$4 \times 5 \times 15 = 300 \text{ cubic ft.}$$

$$.8$$

$$\text{Ans. } 240.0 \text{ bus.}$$

$$240 + 1 = 241 \text{ bus. exact ans.}$$

How many bus. will a Wagon-bed hold, 10 ft. long, 3 ft. wide, 18 in. or 1½ ft. deep?

A Bed 10 ft. long, 3 ft. wide will hold 2 bu. for every in. in depth.

$$1\frac{1}{2} \times 3 \times 10 = 45 \text{ cubic feet}$$

$$.8$$

$$\text{Ans. } 36.0 \text{ bus.}$$

EAR CORN MEASURE.

To find the contents of a Corn crib; multiply the cubic feet by 4 and divide the product by 9.

Find the contents of a Corn crib 18 ft. long, 7 ft. wide and 8 ft. high.

*NOTE—This allows 2¼ cubic ft. for a bu. It is the rule most generally used, and will hold out in ordinary good corn, even if measured at the time it is cribbed.

$$7 \times 8 \times 18 = 1008 \text{ cubic feet}$$

$$\text{Ans. } 448 \text{ bus.}$$

TWO SIMPLE RULES FOR FINDING THE CAPACITY OF ROUND BINS, IN BUSHELS.

Where the dimensions measure exactly in feet; multiply the diameter by the diameter, multiply by the depth, multiply by .63.

Where the dimensions measure in inches; multiply the diameter by the diameter, multiply by the depth, multiply by .000365.

TO FIND THE QUANTITY OF GRAIN WHEN HEAPED ON THE FLOOR IN THE FORM OF A CONE.

Square the depth and square the slant height, in inches. Take their difference and multiply by the depth, in inches. Multiply this product by .00048. The result will be the contents, in bushels.

TO FIND THE QUANTITY OF GRAIN WHEN HEAPED AGAINST A STRAIGHT WALL.

Square one-half of the depth and proceed as in the previous rule.
